High Court Lights Up a Glorious Fourth for Revisionists at Home, As Foreign Governments Sweat and Wiesel Whines at Rising Revisionist Cyber-Tide

It was a pre-Fourth of July gift for Americans, and for Holocaust revisionism-hungry folks around the world. On June 26, the Supreme Court of the United States struck down President Bill Clinton's and the Republican-controlled Congress's Communications Decency Act (CDA). In its landmark decision, the nation's highest court ruled that the law violated Americans' First Amendment rights. (We at CODOH can't help but contrast the favorable impact of this year's court decision with last year's July 4 sneak-attack black-out of our Website by its server, thanks to the machinations of its district manager, Holocaust fanatic Rick Horowitz.)

No one has more reason to rejoice at the court's decision than revisionists--not just here in America, but abroad, for in many of the countries most afflicted by the Holocaust dogma, there is at present no other practical, legal method of accessing information--hard, uncompromising scholarly fact--that challenges the state-sanctioned lies of the exterminationists than by the Internet.

There is little question that revisionism via the Internet is beginning to make inroads here and abroad. These inroads are difficult to quantify, other than in the increasing but not entirely satisfactory "hit counts"

The leading German-language revisionist quarterly Vierteljahreshefte fuer freie Geschichtsforschung (Quarterly for Free Historical Research) used a reproduction of the home page of CODOHWeb, CODOH's site on the World Wide Web, as it appears on computer screens of revisionists around the world, to illustrate the cover of its second issue, themed "War in Cyberspace—Revisionism on the Internet: The Censors' War against the Electronic Revolution."

NOTEBOOK

You may have noticed that this issue of Smith's Report is late. If I were a sober, practical professional I wouldn't let on why. But mine is an unfailingly amateur personality so I'm going to spill the beans. I'm over my head in expenses and debt and I'm moving to Rosarito--as in Mexico--a beach town 20 miles south of the border in Baja California. We have been thinking about it for 10 years. By the time you have this in your hands we'll be there. I think it's going to prove to be a blessing.

I'll have a house to live in that's rent-free, a relatively spacious office to work in after working for nine years in our dining room and garage, a USPO mail box in San Ysidro on the U.S. side of the border, and a cross-border postal delivery service every 24 hours. I'll have two telephone lines into the house and a Stateside telephone answering service. My expenses will drop (very) significantly, if my calculations are anywhere at all in the ball park, so I will go no further into debt, and I'll be able to spend less time juggling five and ten dollars from one place to another and more time on the work I have before me.

Every month for close to three years I have gone deeper into debt. It's been a real bother. It's nicely ironic that soon after I lost my two major supporters and began building my debt, I was able to establish CODOHWeb on the Internet, reinvigorate the Campus Project, and upgrade Smith's Report to where it compares with any revisionist publication of its kind that has ever appeared in print, and excels most.

Revisionism isn't a business. I have no salary and no regular income. I knew it wasn't a business before I got into it but I got into it anyway. I know of only three people in the world who make a living at revisionism--and they're on notice. If anyone out there knows how to make revisionism a business, I'm all ears.

Putting aside my personal financial mess, the good news is that it will have no effect whatever on CODOHWeb. Our Internet server will remain in Orange County where it is now. It doesn't matter where I live. Richard Widmann and David Thomas will continue to do the lion's share of the work on the site, and CODOHWeb will continue to grow, as we noted in SR44, as an encyclopedic source of new revisionist research and scholarship. I could be shot by a Mexican border agent on my way to Rosarito and CODOHWeb, structured as it is, would just keep sailing on through the cosmos in the best of hands.

Smith's Report will not be affected by the move. SR is the instrument I use to inform you of what I am doing (together with a growing number of volunteers) to encourage open debate on the Holocaust controversy. I have corralled top editorial help for SR, and none of these individuals have ever lived here in Visaila or any other place where we could meet face to face. With regard to the work it doesn't make any difference whatever to any of us that I am going to be in Mexico. We are working now with people all over the globe. It costs next to nothing to communicate using e-mail. It costs next to nothing to produce SR using e-mail. It's a miracle of modern technology. Five years ago it would have been impossible for me to operate in this manner. Five years ago there was no Internet "Web" to speak of. Five years ago I would have been a dead duck.

The Campus Project will not be affected by my being in Mexico. I'll be a half-hour from the border. It's a 45-minute drive from Rosarito to San Diego. I can manage the Project using e-mail, fax and the postal service next academic year as I did last and the years before that. I can run the Project; we'll have to see if I can raise the money to run it well. But--and my apologies--I am going to have to refuse to go any further into debt.

The first week in May I understood I had to change the course my expenses were taking. I could either decide to move or I could wait and hope for the best. If the best happened I could stay where I am, but if something less happened we, all of us, would be out on the street, literally, maybe as early as September. It was suddenly an easy decision to make. When you have no choice, it's easy. When you have a choice you can go back and forth. Once you know there's no choice you do what's necessary.

There's always a catastrophe looming in the background when you're in revisionism, unless you are not very much in it. People used to ask me why I got into revisionism in the first place. I didn't know why I got into it. I used to say it was just poor judgement. I thought I had decided to become a professional writer but then, in 1979, I read Robert Faurisson's article for Le Monde, "Auschwitz: The Problem of the Gas Chambers." It had taken me years to come to the decision to become a professional writer, but it took only 20 minutes to become a revisionist. Now, as people discover that once again I seem to be in extremis, I am being asked why I don't get out of revisionism. I don't know that either. I don't know why I got in, don't know why I'm not getting out. It doesn't even cross my mind to get out. In 18 years it would appear I haven't learned anything.

I've learned that revisionism is somehow worth the bother to me. Somehow. I did it yesterday, I'm doing it today, I expect to do it tomorrow. My sense of things, still, is that revisionism is at the pivot point of the intellectual life of Western culture, and that it will remain so on into the next millennium. My immediate concern is that I get rid of the useless burdens that interfere with my effectiveness as a writer, obstruct my imagination, and undermine what should be a fun-filled life.

(records of site visits) being registered by CODOHWeb (see Richard Widmann's "Internet Round-up," in SR42 and the lead story, "Lipstadt Unleashed...." in SR43) and by such sister sites (linked to CODOHWeb) as Ernst Zuendel's site (which CODOHWeb is "mirroring," or copying, in the even that the legal proceedings currently underway against Ernst in Canada force him to close down his America-based site [http://www.websom.com/ezuendel)].

There are more indirect indicators of revisionism's impact over the Internet, however. A recent survey of teenage middle-school students in Sweeden, conducted by the University of Stockholm and the Crime Prevention Council (!), found that a good 30 percent of the youths questioned have doubts about whether the Holocaust is a historical fact (reported in the Hackensack, NJ Record, June 14, 1997).

While this story, which included a predictable lamentation from Swedish prime minister Goeran Persson("This is, naturally, an appalling warning sign") as well as Persson's equally predictable promise to beef up Holocaust indoctrination in the schools, made the wire services here in America, its revealing aftermath didn't.

On June 15, the day after the prime minister's speech, Sweden's small but far from insignificant Holocaust lobby opened a media offensive against Radio Islam, ex-Moroccan army officer Ahmed Rami's Islamist, anti-Zionist and Holocaust revisionist radio program, and against Rami's site on the Web: WWW. http://flashback.se/~rislam], also known as Radio Islam and linked, by one click of a computer mouse, to CODOHWeb.

Just one week after the prime minister's official outrage over the findings of the opinion poll, Sweden's attorney general initiated legal proceedings against Rami's Website. Like it or not--and we don't--we can't help but note that Swedish officialdom (ably hectored along by such stalwarts as Jakob Ringart, head of The Association of Survivors of the Holocaust) went right to the source of what it considered the chief culprit in the growing disaffection of Swedish schoolkids with the Holocaust cult. (More than a few of these bright, intellectually independent young people--a high proportion of whom can read English--undoubtedly made their way--just one click, remember?--from Radio Islam's Web site to CODOHWeb with its vast array of revisionist scholarship, news, commentary etc.)

The purpose of this site is to promote intellectual freedom with regard to this one historical event, which in turn will promote intellectual freedom toward all historical events (thus all other issues). We have chosen to concentrate on the gas chamber stories and war crimes trials because they are emblematic of the allegedly unique monstrosity of the Germans before and during World War II. We believe it deeply vulgar to spend half a century condemning others for their violence and brutality when we have not yet learned to condemn our own, or even recognize it. We want to help civilize Americans. We're not Germans and we're not Jews (well, some of us are) and we are not focused on how naughty they were or were not. We're focused on American culture, on the American ideal that liberty has the power to wash a people clean and that there is no liberty without intellectual freedom.

In Germany, the censors who operate the government know what's at stake. On July 4, Germany's leaders issued a declaration, not of independence, but of servitude, as the upper house of the German legislature passed the first law to control "cyberspace," to take effect on August 1. As with their long-standing efforts to control traditional print material, they've camouflaged themselves behind a concern with fighting "smut" directed at juveniles so they can disarm conservative sensibilities--while making their main concern revisionist and nationalist literature.

Besides Western Europe, the virus of suppressing revisionist ideas on the Internet has now spread to Australia, where Fredrick Toben's Adelaide Institute Website [http://www. adam. com.au/~fredadin/adins.html] has had a complaint brought against it before the so-called Human Rights and Equal Opportunity Commission by the Executive Council of Australian Jewry.

Elie Wiesel focuses on danger of Internet. In a recent interview, super-survivor, Nobel laureate and self-proclaimed human cannonball (see SR 42, "Elie Wiesel: Sometimes the Truth Is an Accident") Wiesel unbosomed himself to The Jerusalem Post on the "deniers" (that's us, folks). As paraphrased by the Post, Elie said this regarding the chief avenue of attack along which revisionism is storming against frauds like himself today:

> The real problem with the deniers, Wiesel says, is the Internet, and how it's used to spread lies and hate, especially to young people. He proposes a closed-meeting with the best legal minds, as well as philosophers, to discuss the issue of free speech, and what should be done. "Of all things, this is the most important."

These sentiments, published in the JP International Edition for the week ending May 24, 1997, don't exactly fill our hearts and minds with blithe anticipation. Why behind closed doors? And haven't our philosophers and best legal minds been discussing "the issue of free speech" for two and a half millennia? For our tastes "what should be done" echoes too much of Lenin for peace of mind.

We prefer the U.S. Supreme Court, for all its lapses, and the First Amendment, whatever its shortcomings, to Wiesel's proposed anti-revisionist cyber-starchamber. And we note that neither of the two Jewish justices, Breyer or Ginsburg, by finding the CDA an unconstitutional infringement on free speech, seemed inclined to go along with Wiesel's likely prescription for "what should be done" about free speech for Internet revisionists.

Of course, there's a method to Wiesel's madness, and the mock-philosophical ruminations and rationales of this two-penny Torquemada are being translated into action at this moment by police agencies around the planet. But it must not be forgotten that they're acting because their bosses feel they must: that all the media brainwashing, the mandated Holocaust "education," the supervised tours of Auschwitz and Belsen, are failing, simply failing, before the onslaught of the facts, as heroically uncovered and intrepidity advanced by men and women such as Robert Faurisson, Germar Rudolf, Arthur Butz, David Irving, Ingrid Weckert and their like.

Thanks to the First Amendment to our Constitution, and to the independence from royal and parliamentary infringement on our rights which the founders of our nation proclaimed and fought for over 200 years ago, the Committee for Open Debate of the Holocaust, through CODOHWeb, remains free of governmental meddling. Today, CODOHWeb offers the questioning and questing youth of Sweden, of Germany, of France, of Australia--in the native languages of all those countries--no less than to college kids in America, an arsenal of fact, news and commentary on what really happened in those concentration camps 50 plus years ago, and why the truth about it and the freedom to debate it is so important today.

Napoleon said that victory goes to the big battalions. While revisionists are small in number, an awful lot of them are big in mind and big in heart. Thanks to them, with your continued help to carry on the fight, with the seed of doubt we've helped plant already growing in the minds of our most inquisitive young people, victory--while not yet perhaps in sight--becomes conceivable.

LYLE STUART "BARRICADES" REVISIONIST MANUSCRIPTS

I recently had occasion to read an article sent me from the Hoboken Record (2 February 97) titled "House of Stuart." It gave the background to the publishing history of Lyle Stuart, who is perhaps the most independent and controversial mainstream book publisher in the United States. He specializes in publishing books that challenge orthodox American culture, including The Anarchist Cookbook, the exposes of the CIA by Philip Agee, and most recently The Turner Diaries. His latest publishing house is called Barricade.

The Turner Diaries of course is the revolutionary racialist diatribe written by William Pierce of The National Alliance and is said to have helped influence Tim McVeigh to bomb the Oklahoma City federal building, if he bombed it. Reading the Hoboken Record article I was so carried away with Mr. Stuart's credentials and courage that I decided to send him the opening section of the book manuscript I've been working on, which used to be titled Break His Bones but which now I'm calling A Simple Writer (I have my reasons).

It occured to me that if Lyle Stuart won't publish me, no main line publisher of any note will publish me. I might as well get over it. On 6 June I received a page and a half letter from Mr. Stuart rejecting the mere idea of publishing any Holocaust revisionist work, and particularly mine. I was so pleased that this daring and independent publisher would take the trouble to that at first I failed to see how interesting the letter really is.

Stuart dismisses me as a "misguided" fellow and notes that he has never met anyone in the German government... who denies the existence of the gas chambers..." Recalling the adventures of Germar Rudolf, William Staeglich, Fred Leuchter, Hans Schmidt and a score of others who have the misfortune to be German in this day and age, or simply to have passed through that benighted land, I can easily accept Stuart's experience on this matter. What it would mean for a high-ranking or well-known German to tell a Jewish-American publisher that there were no gas chambers at Auschwitz?

In his letter Stuart writes: "Where I differ from the Jewish holocaust professionals is that they speak of only 6,000,000 Jews. The fact is that some fourteen to eighteen million gypsies, homosexuals, Jews, Catholic priests and nuns and political prisoners were murdered by starvation and disease or were cooked in the camp ovens."

He does not say the whole 14 to 16 million were "cooked" in the camp ovens, so in all likelihood we have here a man of reasoned restraint. Maybe only a million, or even half a million nuns and priests and gay ladies and gents and others were broiled and roasted in the camp ovens. Nevertheless, this lends more credibility to the Hansel and Gretel syndrome than I have imagined I would ever hear, and suggests that the German propensity for cooking those who annoy them was already well developed by the end of the 18th century.

You can judge how evolved we are becoming as a people when you compare the unsavory (no pun intended) but powerful imagery of Lyle Stuart's imagination with that of the simple, almost simple-minded, Sinclair Lewis of three-quarters of a century ago (see: Letters, Lou Rollins).

Stuart was particularly enthusiastic about Claude Lanzmann's Shoah, so I sent him my Confessions of a Holocaust Revisionist, which has a chapter devoted to a key segment of the film, that of Abraham Bomba, the barber of Treblinka. I don't think it will do the trick. Lyle Stuart is a man who is ready and willing to challenge anything and everything--except one thing.

Stuart can publish a book that proposes the mass murder of millions of people based on a racial ideology he loathes because he knows that while such a book is a great scandal for the media, no one in his circle will take it seriously. Revisionism is something else again. His circle takes revisionism very seriously. There's something about Revisionist theory that makes these very sophisticated people nervous, particularly when it is advanced by someone like myself who likes these people and has lived a good part of his life among them.

David Irving takes a novel swing at Der Spiegel: a fine scandal is about to break in Germany

[We received David Irving's Der Spiegel brochure (see below) just before we were to go to print with this issue of SR. He sent along a disk version, so it will go on CODOHWeb very shortly. We think the brochure will create a great scandal behind the scenes. "Meanwhile," Irving writes, "I am spending the next four weeks putting the final polishing touches to volume II of my Churchill's War biography."

The "brochure" just published by David Irving is a simulated Der Spiegel cover story detailing Irving's persecution, by German authorities, and vindication, by the present custodians of the Auschwitz myth, for his claim that the alleged gas chamber in Auschwitz-I is a postwar fake. Done with the British historian's usual flair and attention to verisimilitude, the story ("Der `ruinierte' Historiker hat Recht" [The "ruined" historian is right]) is indistinguishable in design, typography and style from a typical story in Germany's leading news magazine—only the story's different from the usual fare: it tells the truth! This is one parody that will have German officials "chewing the carpet" and media kingpins—from Spiegel publisher Rudolf Augstein on down—paging their lawyers and hailing Germany's busy idea police. But, as a diagonal little subhead on the "cover" announces: "Not a forgery. Only a reconstruction" (Keine Faelschung. Nur eine Rekonstruktion). Funny, that's now the official line on the gas chamber at Auschwitz-I...

*[SR readers can obtain a copy of this German-language account of Irving's fight for truth on the Auschwitz gas chamber, and how he and other revisionists have forced Auschwitz authorities one damaging concession after another, by sending us a one-dollar bill.]

Worldscope on revisionism and revisionists.

• It looks as if the eternally embattled Ernst Zuendel has scored a partial victory by eliminating the Canadian Human Rights Commission as a co-prosecutor in the Canadian "human rights" hearing to deprive him of free speech via his American-based Website. Meanwhile, an even bigger bombshell, if you'll pardon the expression, is shaping up around the indictment of two shadowy Marxist and "animal-rights" activists in the 1995 attempt to murder Zuendel with a pipe bomb. The arrest warrant, as yet unserved, links the two would-be assassins to Jewish benefactors, anti-revisionist "activists" in the Toronto area. More as this story develops...

• In another Canadian "human rights" commission effort to punish and muzzle free expression on the Holocaust controversy, the trial of Doug Collins and the North Shore News (North Vancouver, British Columbia) for (retrospectively) writing and publishing an allegedly sacrilegious column of the movie Schindler's List, concluded at the end of June. Rights commissar Nitya Iyer, acting as a one-woman tribunal, will now decide whether the offending column infringed Jews' sensibilities and what penalties, if any, should be imposed on the paper and its columnist.

Books for a "New Age" Library on the Holocaust Controversy

Will these New-Age books on the Holocaust controversy affect the thinking of our Old-Age scholars and media intellectuals? We'll have to wait and see.

- The Gas Chambers of the Gods
- Denying the Truth: Holocaust Fundamentalism for the New Age
- The Gerstein Prophecy
- The Shroud of Zyklon: Legend or Pious Fraud?
- Hermetic Teachings of the Gas Chambers: Charging Your Body with Zyclon Crystals

• Nowhere has suppression of Holocaust revisionism—scholarly or otherwise—been as systematic as in Germany. At last there's a systematic, scholarly and passionate German answer and challenge to official obscurantism, in the form of the massive Unterdrueckung und Verfolgung Deutscher Patrioten: Gesinnungsdiktatur in Deutschland*? (Suppression and Persecution of German Patriots: Dictatorship of Opinion in Germany?), a 657-page collection of dozens of articles on every aspect--legal, philosophical, intellectual, historical--of Germany's latter-day dictatorship of opinion regarding the Holocaust, by dozens of authors from Ph.D.'s (Alfred Schickel, Ernst Topitsch, Rolf Kosiek, Hans Nawratil) to legal experts (Juergen Rieger) to activists (Manfred Roeder). Everything you wanted know about suppression of free speech on the Holocaust and on the national question in Germany, and how its increasing tempo in line with establishment efforts at ingratiating itself with New York, Brussels and Jerusalem threaten the real Germany's mind and soul. (Hutten-Verlag, 25884 Vioel/ Nordfriesland, Germany.))

• The second issue of Vierteljahreshefte fuer freie Geschichtsforschung (Quarterly for Free Historical Research), from the cover of which we have taken the illustration on the front page of this issue of SR, includes articles by such revisionist kingpins as Robert Faurisson, Carlo Mattogno, editor Germar Rudolf and CODOH associate Richard Widmann. The German-language review, published in Flanders (Stiftung VHO, Postbus 60, B-2600 Berchem 2, Belgien [Flandern]) is now quite possibly the world's leading revisionist journal.

• Sleipnir, a highly intelligent revisionist and "nationalist" magazine published in Berlin by the Verlag der Freunde, is out again (the previous issue was seized by German police for "denigrating" this or that [unspecified in the warrant] symbol of state patriotism). The latest issue contains Bradley Smith's hard-hitting confrontation with America's professional Jewish Holocaustomaniacs (SR #32, May 1996) which we hope is not grounds for another police raid and seizure (Sleipnir, Verlag der Freunde, Postfach 350211, 10211 Berlin).

• Down in the Antipodes, freewheeling Aussie philosopher and revisionist Fredrick Toben (see SR 43, May 1997, "Internet Roundup") is, as noted in the cover story of this issue, being brought up on charges by Australia's Human Rights (hah!) and Equal Opportunity Commission for publishing "malicious anti-Jewish propaganda" on the Website of his Adelaide Institute. To wit, the AI: "denies the existence of the Holocaust, blames Jewish people for the actions of Stalin and threatens violence against Jewish people." The hearing begins September 29. Adelaide Institute, POBox 3300, Norwood 5067, Australia.

• The CODOH conspiracy (who said we don't believe in `em?) to spread the revisionist word through the writings of Bradley Smith advances with publication of Brad's article, "The Holocaust Controversy: The Case for Open Debate" in issue #2 of the alternative quarterly The Hoover Hog: A Review of Dangerous Ideas, 621 Kings Row, Charleston, WV 25314.

• How does a Holocaust true believer run afoul of the keepers of the flame of Holocaustomania? When he dares expose a Jewish-led "holocaust" of Germans. That's what Jewish author John Sack did, in his account of the postwar camps in Communist-occupied parts of the Reich An Eye for an Eye, where hundreds of thousands of Germans died. Re one commandant, the Polish Jewess Lola Potak, Sack points out: "The truth was that the Germans in Lola's prison were worse off than Lola had been at Auschwitz..." Sack's scheduled address to the US Holocaust Memorial Museum last February was canceled at the last minute by the museum's director. The June/July issue of The Washington Report on Middle East Affairs, recently commended in SR for its fairness in printing letters from revisionists on the Holocaust, has done a very creditable write-up on the Sack affair, including the orchestrated ignoring or trashing of An Eye for an Eye by the press.

Revisionism on the Internet
As featured on CODOHWeb

Revisionism on the Internet--This handsome, durable, spiral-bound "journal" presents a cross-section of the materials that are making CODOHWeb a world-wide force for the truth that underlies history's greatest taboo. As described in the previous issue of SR, Revisionism on the Internet contains exiled German chemist Germar Rudolf's analysis of German Establishment scholar W.A. Benz's efforts to re-establish the six million figure in the face of the revisionists assault--Rudolf's findings, the most up-to-date on the question, are worth the price of this booklet.

But there's more: Brad Smith's hitherto unpublished meditation on revisionism, race, racialism and fatherhood, "The Natural Order of Things"; renowned German novelist Hans Grimm's 1950 survey of Allied policy pronouncements, "Germany Must Be Destroyed"; the texts of four long-submerged official documents of "inconvenient history": from Hitler's covert agreement with the Zionists (Ha'avara), the real "final solution" (Rademacher letter), Dwight Eisenhower's horrific estimate of impending German casualties due to the Allies' postwar expulsions (Eisenhower telegram), etc.--as well as reviews of the latest biography of Rudolf Hoess (Steven Pakuly's Death Dealer) and a book on executions in America (Stephen Trombley's The Execution Protocols) by CODOHWeb co-Webmaster Richard Widmann.

Share in the excitement that Swedish schoolkids, German patriots and other visitors to CODOHWeb from around the world are experiencing in the liberating encounter with truths that are withheld from them elsewhere, and help CODOH carry forward its struggle, by contributing $14 (or more) for this 73-page print-out.

LETTERS

Robert Faurisson. Because of my press release of 19 April 1996 (See p. 4-5 of "An Assessment of the Garaudy/Abbe Pierre Affair," January--October 1996) I was immediately indicted. For many reasons, my trial was twice postponed. It will start on 25 September in Paris. The presiding judge said to my lawyer, Eric Delcroix, that it would not last more than 3 hours (for me and for the Jewish lawyer[s] plus for the prosecutor and for my lawyer). As usual, I will be found guilty and sentenced, probably 4 weeks later.

On 8,9, and 15 January 1998, Pierre Guillaume (publisher) and Roger Garaudy (author) will have 3 long afternoons for their own trial. R. Garaudy is now behaving in an even more cowardly way than I expected. In the Italian newspaper Avvenire (19 November 1996), he went so far as to say that he could not have denied the existence of extermination camps since, arrested on 14 September 1940, he had spent 33 months in such a camp! Abbe Pierre has lost all dignity: he keeps on apologizing and saying he was absolutely wrong: "I had not read the book!"

In France (58 million inhabitants), only 3 people have 1) said 2) and repeated 3) publicly that there were no gas chambers and no genocide: Robert Faurisson (68), Vincent Reynouard (28) and Roger-Guy Dommergue (75?); the last one, being a Jew, has never been sued.

Paul V: (Australia): It takes a lot of guts to do what you are doing. I have been to all the concentration camps in Europe and spent many days in Auschwitz. Nowhere did I find any evidence to support the Exterminationist story...just the opposite. Given the choice between working in a prisoner detail at Auschwitz with up to 1700 calories food per day with no bombers and regular work--OR ...being a German soldier on the Eastern Front with mines, bombs, bullets, Partisans, and all the locals would be no contest for me I'd have taken my chances in Auschwitz. Thanks for doing what you are doing. You're a Hero.

Pshaw.

Lou Rollins: I've been reading It Can't Happen Here by Sinclair Lewis. As you may know, it's a novel depicting a Nazi-like dictatorship established in America in 1937 (first published in 1935). I thought you'd be interested to know that among the many atrocities perpetrated by the dictator's henchmen was a gassing of Jews! Here's the relevant paragraph:

"In Rhode Island, the door of a small orthodox synagogue in a basement was locked from the outside after thin glass containers of carbon monoxide had been thrown in. The windows had been nailed shut, and anyway, the

in. The windows had been nailed shut, and anyway, the nineteen men in the congregation did not smell the gas until too late. They were all found slumped to the floor, beards sticking up. They were all over sixty." (Signet paperback, 1970, pp. 232.)

I like the "beards sticking up" detail. A good second-level writer working at top form.

Will Shake-Spear: [The Holocaust is] but a walking shadow, a poor player That struts and frets [its] hour upon the stage And then is heard no more. It is a tale Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury Signifying nothing.

Congratulations, Sir: A great career awaits you!

Tutta Arnold: I am a 70-year old woman, fled from East Germany in December 1945. My heart-felt thanks to you and others like you. The mental agony suffered all these years has been almost unbearable. God bless you!

Sverker Odesjo (Sweden) More of your like is needed!

Anonymous. When I get "Business Reply Mail" envelopes bearing the notation "No postage necessary if mailed in the United States," I simply enclose a copy of your leaflet: "The Holocaust Controversy: The Case for Open Debate," in the envelope and drop in the mail.

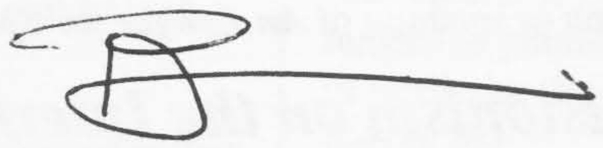
I do the same thing. I've been meaning to make a note of it in these pages for months. One person sending my leaflet out 10 times a month, for example, is not particularly spectacular. But 100 or 500 individuals returning 10 or 20 or more leaflets in post-paid envelopes every month adds up quite nicely.

Evelyn E.K.S. Judge. I think you give Deborah Lipstadt too much valuable publicity. One who lies doesn't deserve even a bad word. She deserves to be ignored--the only suitable nonviolent response. Compared to you, Deborah is like the spiritual dead. Remember what Jesus said about them: "Let the dead bury the dead. I have other work for you to do!" I don't wish to lure you away from the Holocaust battle, but I don't like seeing your excellent talent squandered on falsehoods. Ultimately, falsehoods prove themselves.

THE NEW ADDRESS: This September issue of SR (remember, there is no August issue) will run our new postal address, and my new telephone and fax numbers. Don't worry about losing contact. The Post Office will forward my mail for 12 months. The USPO did a perfectly good job with forwarding when I moved from Hollywood to Visalia eight years ago. The e-mail address for CODOHWeb will not change, no matter where I move.

NAMES: They're still the name of the game. If you know someone you think would be interested in receiving a free copy of Smith's Report and my essay, "The Holocaust Controversy; The Case for Open Debate," please send me his or her name. Every new subscriber is important, even if it's only one. CLIPPINGS: Please continue to send relevant press clippings I am unlikely to see in my daily round. Don't think the other person will do it. He won't do it. MEA CULPA--AGAIN!: In SR 44 I wrote that I was almost out of the woods with shipping materials in exchange for contributions you have sent. That was six weeks ago. I'm behind again. This month I have the I'm-moving-the-family-and-the-office-to-Mexico-excuse. Please bear with me a couple more weeks.

A SPECIAL THANKS to those of you who have helped me this last month with especially generous contributions to get me through this relocation. I could not have done it without your help. Literally! I could not have done it. Once I'm in Mexico and have my office set up I will contact each of you. Thanks again.



Bradley

[Your contribution helps sustain CODOH and CODOHWeb and our growing audience, which stretches from occupied Berlin to occupied East Jerusalem. I can do it with you, but how can I do it without you?]
